MEMBERSHIP RENEWAL

The financial year is drawing to a close. Consequently the time for Membership renewal is also upon us. Once again the Trust has contained its administrative costs and hence, for the third consecutive year there will be no increase in membership fees.

Trust members are the most important component of the movement, without Members there would be no National Trust representation in the A.C.T.

During the period under review the Trust Membership reached 1200.

As an organisation the Trust has made a significant contribution to identification, conservation and education in Canberra. For example, this year the following sites have been classified :

- Aprasia parapulchella (legless lizard).
- Discardia pubescens.
- Parliamentary Triangle (updated).
- Carillon.
- Tharwa Cemetery.
- Lake Burley Griffin (updated).
- Ginninderra Road Cut.
- Changi Chapel.

Meanwhile, the Classification of Instruction Block and Stables at the Royal Military College Duntroon has been down graded to Recorded.

In addition, the Trust has successfully had the following places included on the Interim Register of the National Estate:

- Government House.
- Colverwell Cemetery.
- Sir Harold and Lady White's Garden.

In a broad conservation sense the Trust has been involved with the National Capital Planning Authority on issues such as :

- The future of Front Fences in Canberra.
- The future of housing development subdivision at Ginninderra.
- The removal of a large advertising board on City Hill.

The Trust has recently become involved in the issue of a site for the National Museum of Australia, and the Trust has also had an input into the future of the Old Parliament House.

None of this could happen without the interest and involvement of members, and the Trust seeks your continued support.

The benefits of being a member in Canberra have far reaching implications through the association of National Trusts elsewhere in Australia and Overseas.

When you re-join, why don't you introduce a friend to help care for our cultural and natural heritage. Remember too when renewing your membership that donations over two dollars are tax deductible.

Renewal forms are enclosed with this issue of "Trust News".

HERITAGE WEEK - SAVE THE BUSH

AMPLE PARKING

ELECTRICAL-GARDENWARE-PAINT-HOMEWARE-TOOLS-COOKWARE
AND MUCH MUCH MORE!!

The landscape setting has remnants of Glebe House planting which was supplemented by extensive development as an integral part of the 1955 design.

The Pool has recently been entered on the Register of the National Estate. It is also within City Section 37 which together with Sections 10 (part) and 62 are subject to the draft amendment by the National Capital Planning Authority and the ACT Planning Authority.

This draft amendment proposes major development, and the Trust has responded with a submission stressing the heritage significance of the Pool and surrounds, and requesting not only the retention of the Pool and landscaping, but that any building nearby not impinge on the integrity of the Canberra Olympic Pool site.

INTERIM REGISTER OF THE NATIONAL ESTATE

Members might be interested to note that two sites which the Trust has nominated have just been entered on the INTERIM (meaning objections can be lodged for 3 months) Register of the National Estate. They are Yarralumla and Surrounds and the garden of 27 Mugga Way, Red Hill.

The Trust has played a significant role in nominating the Australian National Botanic Gardens, Casey House and surrounds and the Burns Memorial, which have all now been entered on the Register.

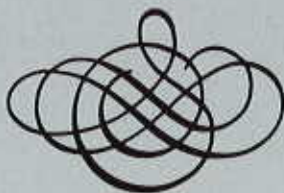

The Trust also nominated the surrounds of the Burns Memorial, but these were rejected - Guess why? Because they had already disappeared under the new development on the site!!!

ABORIGINAL SCARRED TREES

Really exciting discoveries of aboriginal scarred trees were made recently in Tuggeranong by Dr Jo Flood. Nominations for classification of approximately 12 trees will be examined by the Classification Committee at its June meeting.

Our thanks go to Jo Flood for her work, and also our best wishes for her forthcoming marriage and departure for England.

The Classification Committee will miss her expertise.

CLASSIFICATION

Council recently classified the Canberra Olympic Pool for its architectural historic and social significance.

The Olympic Swimming Pool Complex (pool and landscape) was recognised by the architectural profession soon after completion when it was awarded the John Sulman Award by the RAlA (NSW Chapter). This award was for meritorious architecture of buildings in the recreational and sporting class erected in NSW and ACT in the previous five years.. The high integrity of the complex allows it to demonstrate the characteristics of a recreational building of the International Style influenced by the Festival of Britain.

The complex is important for its associations with the interest in swimming and diving leading up to the 1956 Olympic Games in Melbourne. It also has associations with the relatively modest development of Canberra near the end of post world war two period, before the rapid development of the 1960's.

The Pool and its landscapae qualities are highly valued by the Canberra community for social and recreational associations.

The Pool was commenced in 1953, and completed in 1955. A kiosk building has been added, and a bubble, to enable all year round use, is to cover the Pool in 1991.

The complex consists of three pools, associated buildings and structures, within a landscape setting. The main pool was 55 yards but has been shortened to 50 metres. The children's pool is 18.9 metres long and the diving pool is 4.87 metres deep. Each pool is a reinforced concrete tank faced with glazed tiles, with starting blocks and lanes defined by contrasting colours.

The buildings, which comprise changing rooms and club rooms, filtration plant and workshop are grouped about the north to south west section of the site. There is a caretaker's residence to the east of the changing rooms. A close boarded fence protects the pool from prevailing winds.

External walls of the building were originally of painted duck egg blue with white diagonal pattern.

The reinforced concrete diving tower is an impressive design and its cantilever form innovative in the 1950's. To the east is an appropriately landscaped recreation area. The complex is an example of the post-war international style, influenced by the Festival of Britain (1951). Elements that express that style are the horizontal proportions and fenestration of the buildings, the flat roofs with curved projecting skylights, the diagonal pattern of the external walls, the diving tower, balustrades and flagpoles.

LONDON BRIDGE HOMESTEAD - VOLUNTEERS FOR CONSERVATION PROJECT

The London Bridge Homestead is suffering from neglect and is slowly deteriorating. Consequently, the Trust is arranging a Working Bee, in conjunction with the ACT Heritage Unit, during July/August, to assist in stabilising the property. If you would like to help with this project please contact the Trust either by phone on 2810 711 or return the enclosed proforma.

The London Bridge Homestead was classified by the National Trust in 1980. The buildings date from the 1870's to the 1950's. They are variously constructed from rubble and limestone, lathe and plaster, timber and mud brick.

The land was acquired through a Crown Grant in 1857 by John McNamara. His son John, junior, inherited the property in 1901 but he leased it to F.A. Campbell, of Woden, and J. Moore of Lagoon in 1908. He returned to London Bridge in 1912 although the property was leased again after his death in 1915. In 1921 London Bridge was bought by E.M. and J. Noone but it changed hands in 1928 when Robert Douglas purchased the property. London Bridge remained in the Douglas family until it was requisitioned by the Commonwealth in 1973.

BUS SHELTER REFURBISHMENT

Would anyone like to help with the refurbishment of two bus shelters? One is located in Schlick Street, Yarralumla and the other is at the corner of Melbourne Avenue and National Circuit.
