The Australian Heritage Festival Tasmania is supported through funding from the Tasmanian Government and the Australian Government's National Trusts Partnership Program.

Message from the Premier

The Tasmanian Heritage Festival showcases the remarkable history and heritage that has shaped our island home.

This year's Tasmanian Heritage Festival offers an opportunity to revisit the familiar and scratch below the surface to uncover new stories.

Take some time during this month-long festival to explore the many events on offer in this year's program. Discover the history behind the events and people that have shaped our communities and our lifestyle. Connect with the many organisations, businesses, owners and volunteers who are the custodians of our heritage stories and places. Challenge yourself to learn and see something new in this wonderful state we share.

It's a great festival and we're delighted to support it. I congratulate the National Trust of Australia (Tasmania) for organising another jam-packed program, and thank the many people involved in the program for sharing their time, their stories and their passion for all of us to enjoy.

Will Hodgman

Premier
Minister for Heritage

Message from the Managing Director

This year's Tasmanian Heritage Festival is a true testament to the far-reaching and meaningful place that heritage holds in Tasmanian communities.

The 2017 festival theme, 'Having a Voice', has cast a new light on many familiar, and not so familiar, heritage spaces around the state and resulted in the discovery of some remarkable stories.

This year is the 30th year of the National Trust's co-ordination of the Heritage Festival in Tasmania, and our staff and tireless volunteers are very proud to again be part of a festival that contributes so much to our identity as Tasmanians.

I wish to encourage every Tasmanian to champion the rediscovery and celebration of our wonderful heritage. Pick up a festival program, talk with your family and friends and enjoy some of the fascinating, moving, unique events near you this May!

This year, don't forget to share your experiences on social media using the hashtag #ahf2017.

Matthew Smithies

Managing Director
National Trust Tasmania

Message from the Chairperson

The Tasmanian Heritage Festival in 2017 will once again provide a wonderful showcase and celebration of our unique and important heritage.

With this year's festival theme of 'Having a Voice', participants have seized on the opportunity to re-imagine, re-consider and re-interpret our heritage, and perhaps also to re-assess its impact in/on our community - now and for future generations.

Building on the successes of previous heritage festivals, the National Trust of Tasmania management and staff have worked tirelessly in collaboration with the community to provide a wonderful festival program that truly promotes the exploration, recognition and preservation of our heritage. This year's program has a full calendar of events, and it is excellent to see that this involves participants and organisations from right across the state.

The continued success of the Tasmanian Heritage Festival is of course made possible each year by the committed support of very many people and organisations.

So we would like to thank all the volunteers who so passionately dedicate their time, energy and skills to so many community organisations in every part of the state. Thank you too to all the organisations who are participating this year and contributing so importantly to the program through their particular event.

This wide combination of local community events, offered across the state, provides a very rich tapestry of opportunities to celebrate our heritage. We hope you take up as many of these opportunities as you are able.

A special acknowledgement must also be given to all of our National Trust volunteers and staff for their hard work and commitment in putting this festival together, which has not only made the festival possible, but has also contributed to the success it clearly promises to be.

On behalf of the Board of the National Trust Tasmania, I should like to acknowledge most sincerely the key support given to The Tasmanian Heritage Festival by the Tasmanian State Government and the Australian Federal Government - and to thank them not only for their support to this festival but also for their recognition of Tasmania's unique and important heritage.

The National Trust respectfully acknowledges the Tasmanian Aborigines as the traditional owners of this land.

Welcome to the 2017 National Trust Tasmania Heritage Festival program. The theme for this year's Heritage Festival is 'Having a Voice' and the National Trust has worked with communities across Tasmania to tell their stories through different voices, recognising the many narratives that have shaped Tasmania.

The program is designed for you to keep, so that you can plan your visits to these fascinating sites throughout the year.

Huge congratulations to the following organisations who have taken up the challenge of this year's Heritage Festival theme.

The event that Friends of Willow Court is holding traces the history of Alexander Laing and the fiddle tunes he composed when he resided and worked in New Norfolk.

Alexander Laing was born in Scotland, and was transported to Sydney in 1814. Then after moving to Hobart Town and eventually marrying, he became a police constable at Sorell. In 1851 he was appointed New Norfolk Gaoler, and resigned from that position to become 'upper wards man' in 1856 at the New Norfolk asylum, a position he held until his dismissal in 1862 for drunkenness.

Alexander Laing wrote 242 tunes for the fiddle, including 60 original compositions named after his family and well known identities, with 25 of these tunes written during the period he lived in New Norfolk, and a number of these were written for the asylum's superintendents and family members, as well as local community members and visitors.

The Alexander Laing fiddle trail, hosted by FoWC, involves travelling by bus to selected properties around New Norfolk that are identified as relevant to Laing's fiddle tunes and, while at each property, the fiddle tunes that are relevant to that property are played, and the history of Alexander Laing's connection to the site is told, along with a short history of the property.

Lunch is at the Lachlan hall in the beautiful Lachlan valley just south of New Norfolk, and the event concludes at historic Glen Derwent homestead, with a Devonshire tea and tour included.

The bus will transport participants back to Bathurst Street at conclusion of the event at 3.30pm.

Warm clothes, enclosed shoes and an umbrella are advised, as part of this event is held in the open. Enclosed shoes are required for entry to Willow Court Barracks.

Penitentiary Chapel Historic Site

Pandemonium

Between 1806 and 1946, 221 people were hanged in Van Diemen's Land. The Penitentiary Chapel Site, shortened by inmates to 'the Trench', was the dark heart of the convict system in Tasmania. Behind these walls, 55,000 men ate, prayed, slept and were punished. 'Pandemonium' the film, is an immersive audio-visual experience within the original Penitentiary Chapel where convicts actually sat.

Glover in Arcadia

Please meet at the Rosny Farm car park, next to the Rosny Golf Course.

Discover the sites of iconic paintings of Hobart via a walk with experts, and meet the artists behind 'Glover in Arcadia'.

Take a walk back in time to discover the locations where some of our most iconic colonial artists painted and drew the growing city of Hobart Town. With the help of experts on artists such as Glover, Piquenit and Ashburner, we will try to locate the spots where some of the most recognisable pictures of Hobart were created. The walk will finish at the Rosny Barn, where participants will be able to see the exhibition 'Glover in Arcadia', curated around contemporary responses to the works of John Glover, and meet some of the artists involved. Refreshments will be supplied.

Kangaroo Bluff Battery

Date Daily

From the time of the first official white settlement of the Derwent at Risdon Cove in 1803, there was concern over the possibility of attack by sea. By 1836, it was thought that mutually supporting batteries on both sides of the Derwent could turn Hobart Town into a fortress. Kangaroo Point, with its steep bluff, was an ideal site located on the eastern shore.

Venue Kangaroo Bluff Battery, Gunning St, Bellerive

Time 9am - 5pm

Royal Tasmanian Botanical Gardens - French Memorial Garden & Fountain

Date Daily

The French Memorial Fountain, created in 1972 by sculptor Stephen Walker, recognises the bicentenary of early French exploration in Tasmania. Marc-Joseph Marion du Fresne, on his voyage to explore the South Pacific, arrived in Tasmania in 1772 followed by the expeditions of Bruni D'Entrecasteaux in 1792 and 1793. D'Entrecasteaux established a base at Recherche Bay to replenish supplies and undertake scientific research. Expedition botanist Jacques Labillardiere collected many plants including the type specimen of the Tasmanian blue gum, Eucalyptus globulus and Felix Delahaye established a food garden on the shore. Today, the plantings around the fountain are representative of the plants collected and described by Labillardiere during those early voyages.

Venue Royal Tasmanian Botanical Gardens, Queens Domain, Hobart

Time 8am - 5pm

Entry Free

Royal Tasmanian Botanical Gardens - Historic Walls

Date Daily

The Gardens are bordered on two sides by magnificent convict built heritage walls. Governor Arthur commissioned the brick and sandstone heated Arthur Wall in 1829 to protect frost-tender plants and aid the ripening of fruit. It was soon apparent heating was not needed in Tasmania's climate but the wall, with its door on the southern end, acted as the entrance to the Gardens for visitors until the main gates were

Royal Tasmanian Botanical Gardens – 200 Years 2018

Date Daily

The RTBG will celebrate its 200th anniversary in 2018 making it one of the earliest continuously running heritage sites in Tasmania. This history is apparent in the many heritage structures and the mature trees that act as a backbone to more recent plantings. Early buildings and structures include the Superintendent's Cottage of 1829, once divided to house convicts on one side and the superintendent on the other and the original overseer's cottage built in 1845. Many of the mature trees are conifers with the Pinetum established above the Lily Pond in 1862 and the trees along the Arthur Wall planted as an avenue to the decorative cast iron main gates that were erected in 1878.

Our Volunteers

It is often repeated that volunteers are the lifeblood of the National Trust, and this tenet could not be more apparent or more relevant than it is today. Yet it is not only the National Trust that draws deeply on a dedicated base of volunteers.

Heritage organisations everywhere are built on the support of countless volunteers who generously give their time so that others may explore, experience and enjoy their unique heritage.

Perhaps the answer as to why so many individuals choose to spend their spare time in this way lies in the importance that these places, and stories, hold for their communities.

The Tasmanian Heritage Festival is a true testament to this passion and service.

In almost every heritage organisation featured in the festival program, volunteers have been working behind the scenes, sometimes for decades.

Tour guiding, gardening, maintaining cold and draughty heritage homes, cooking, manning shops, fundraising, managing, and curating - the list goes on.

We wish to sincerely thank the volunteers across Tasmania, for the vitally important work that they do in the preservation, conservation and celebration of Tasmania's heritage and for the invaluable contribution they have all made to our shared culture.

The Old Umbrella Shop

Twentieth-century visitors to the Umbrella Shop on George Street in Launceston, would surely have been amazed by the quality of craftsmanship available.

Three generations and over a century later, this extraordinary little shop is still in operation, offering a rare glimpse into twentieth-century shop interiors and the fine work of the Shott family.

In 1907, Robert Walter Shott (1858-1935), who had recently moved from Melbourne where he had operated a successful umbrella shop since the late 1880s, opened his business at 60 George Street.

Robert Shott had already gained a reputation in Melbourne for his ingenuity and quality of work, having invented a folding umbrella frame, which he sold to the Fox Umbrella Company.

Soon after commencing operations in Launceston, he quickly established a reputation in the community for his excellent craftsmanship and started using Tasmanian timbers in his products, even presenting a walking stick to the Prince of Wales during the Royal visit to Tasmania in 1920.

By the mid 1920's, Robert Walter's son Robert Martin Shott (1899-1964) began to take on a more active role within the business. Robert Jnr shared Robert Snr's talent and exceptional craftsmanship and expanded the business to include the production and sale of Tasmanian wood souvenirs.

John William Robert Shott (1925-1978) was the last Shott to inherit and operate the family business.

He began working at the store as a teenager in the 1940s and became an expert French polisher and machinist.

Assisted by his sister Dare, who repaired and sewed decorations onto the umbrellas, the two siblings continued to move the business from strength to strength with souvenirs from the shop regularly presented as civic gifts by the Launceston City Council.

In 1979 the National Trust acquired the Umbrella Shop following the death of John Shott and has continued to run the retail front of the business, although umbrellas and wood souvenirs are no longer manufactured on the premises.

The Old Umbrella Shop is so much more than just a fascinating intact heritage shop interior, it is physical evidence of the remarkable legacy left by the Shott family and a wonderful example of why the National Trust strives to protect and present historic places such as this one.

Come in and explore The Old Umbrella Shop, open 9am to 5pm Monday to Friday and 9am to 12noon Saturday, and help us continue the tradition.

Preserving our State's Heritage for Future Generations!

Through the National Trust's Tasmanian Heritage Conservation Appeal Program you can make a valuable contribution to securing our state's unique heritage.

Tax deductible donations can be made directly to the Trust or to a specific conservation project in your community. (See the National Trust web site for appeals currently in your area or call the National Trust on 6344 6233.)

The Conservation Appeal Program is operated by the National Trust Tasmania working in partnership with individuals and corporate, government, and community organisations. Funds are raised for specific projects to protect and preserve Tasmania's built, cultural and natural heritage.

The program also partners with education and training organisations to develop the next generation of skilled heritage conservation professionals, preserving and passing on trade and artisan skills.

All donations over $2.00 are tax deductible and go directly towards heritage protection, conservation, and restoration in your community.
