ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

To nominate a person or group of people:

You may be making a nomination for lifetime achievement, to a young person under 35 years or to a volunteer or group of volunteers.

Whatever category, the focus will be on that person or group’s participation in heritage conservation in Queensland.

LIFETIME ACHIEVEMENT AWARD

A Lifetime Achievement Award may be presented by the President of the National Trust to individuals who have demonstrated a lifetime of valuable contribution to heritage conservation in Queensland.

The Trust will consult a range of heritage experts for recommendations and any nominations will be considered.

In your nomination, tell us when the person began their involvement in heritage conservation, what type or types of conservation work they have undertaken, what level of respect they have attained in their industry, whether they have been acknowledged by peers in their particular field and if there is any work they have undertaken which stands out.

VOLUNTEER/GROUPS

An Award may also be presented to volunteers or volunteer groups that demonstrate a commitment above and beyond, and inspire others. The subject of the nomination may have undertaken advocacy for the protection and conservation of key heritage places or be a long-term or active participant in the field of heritage management.

Advocacy is one of the core activities of the National Trust. Since the 1960s our members have been representing community interests in the places of cultural heritage significance - National Trust owned or otherwise – those in our immediate surrounds and others in more remote parts of the state. Community advocacy campaigns and community efforts focused on the protection of heritage in Queensland, may be acknowledged and awarded through this category.

Tell us what organisations they have worked for or volunteered for, what type or types of heritage work they have undertaken, whether they have undertaken additional study beyond entry level for their trade or profession, how their work is viewed by peers in their particular field of endeavour and whether they have been formally acknowledged through any industry organisation.

Tell us why they have potential to be a leader and how they have excelled within their early career.

YOUNG PERSON AWARD

An Award may also be presented to young people (under the age of 35 at the time nominations close) who have demonstrated excellence in the development of heritage conservation skills, the potential to be a heritage leader and have inspired others in heritage work. An eligible young person may be working in the heritage professions or trades or be involved in heritage projects. The Trust will consult a range of heritage experts for recommendations and any nominations will be considered.

Tell us what organisations they have worked for or volunteered for, what type or types of heritage work they have undertaken, whether they have undertaken additional study beyond entry level for their trade or profession, how their work is viewed by peers in their particular field of endeavour and whether they have been formally acknowledged through any industry organisation.

Tell us why they have potential to be a leader and how they have excelled within their early career.

The NTAQ reserves the right to nominate individuals, young people, volunteers or volunteer groups to these Awards.

Presenting the Awards

The Queensland Heritage Awards will be presented at a formal function to be held in late May 2018.

The contact person on the nomination form will be advised if the project will be receiving an Award. It is the responsibility of the nominator to advise all the other people associated with their project and invite them to the function.

Certificates: One framed certificate will be provided. Any additional unframed certificates (up to 3 for which a cost will apply) must be requested before the event. Prices will be available after judging is completed.

Other Conditions

1. For the purpose of promoting the Awards, the National Trust reserves the right to exhibit all or any of the nominations, including images.

2. The judges reserve the right to change categories for a nomination if they consider the nomination better fits the criteria of a different category.

3. The National Trust may request further information to support a nomination.

4. Whilst all due care is taken, the National Trust accepts no legal liability for damages to or loss of nomination documents.
