

Conservation work supported by the Endowment Fund

"Barwon Park Mansion, set in a sweeping rural landscape, is a truly monumental and majestic place.

The National Trust and its generous-hearted volunteers have been caring for it over many years.

Historically, culturally, architecturally, Barwon Park is of great heritage significance. It needs, and deserves, strong community and philanthropic backing to ensure its preservation for future generations to enjoy.

I encourage you to support the Barwon Park Endowment Fund."

Barwon Park Endowment Fund

— Giving the past a future —

Dear Supporter,

Through the Barwon Park Endowment Fund, which is held in the National Trust of Victoria Foundation, we invite you to make a lasting financial contribution to preserve Barwon Park for future generations. Barwon Park has an important story to share with international visitors, tourists, school children and local residents. Embarrassed by having to entertain visiting royalty at an undistinguished homestead, Pastoralist Thomas Austin and his wife built the lavish 42 room mansion in 1871.

Barwon Park remains largely intact, both inside and out. Very few other mansions in Australia can boast such elaborate interiors with so many rooms retaining their original decoration.

We must ensure that Barwon Park is well preserved and maintained for generations to come. Significant investment has been made in recent years, creating local employment and encouraging the retention of heritage skills and training.

Conservation is an expensive and ongoing task. Become a part of Barwon Park's history and help to protect this unique heritage asset into the future.

Any donation that is made to the Barwon Park Endowment Fund will be held in perpetuity, helping us to build a corpus and will be used solely for the benefit of Barwon Park. Making a bequest to the Barwon Park Endowment Fund, through the Foundation, will help to ensure a lasting legacy for Barwon Park.

Thank you for your commitment to
GIVING THE PAST A FUTURE.
